Data Privacy Trends
Music City Center, Nashville
Tuesday, Aug. 6, 2019
10:15 a.m. – 12 p.m.

With the new California Consumer Privacy Act, GDPR, and myriad state and federal proposals on data privacy, the landscape is changing rapidly, and both legislators and private companies are looking for solutions. Hear different perspectives and discuss lessons learned—from industry, government and consumer representatives—about what U.S. privacy laws should look like and whether there is common ground.

Speaker Biographies

Senator Roz Baker, Hawaii

A Maui legislator for over 25 years, Senator Roz Baker represents the 6th Senate District (South and West Maui) in the Hawai’i State Legislature. She is currently the Chair of the Senate Commerce, Consumer Protection, and Health Committee. From 2007-2008, Senator Baker served as Chair of Ways and Means, crafting a balanced two-year biennium budget and helping pilot the Senate’s successful paperless project - moving the Senate and committee processes into the digital age. In addition to her work on state legislative committees, Senator Baker has also served on several national committees including the Subcommittee on Pediatric Emergency Care of the Institute for Medicine. As a cancer survivor, she has been a longtime volunteer with the American Cancer Society. Prior to moving to Hawai’i in 1980, Senator Baker was a lobbyist for the National Education Association in Washington, D.C. She is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University (now Texas State University at San Marcos) with a BA in political science and speech and a secondary teaching certificate. She did her postgraduate studies at the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette (now University of Louisiana Lafayette).
Senator Nicole J. Cannizzaro, Nevada

Nicole Cannizzaro has served as Majority Leader of the Nevada Senate since March 2019. She was previously Assistant Majority Leader from November 2018 to March 2019. She was first elected to the Senate in November 2016. Senator Cannizzaro received a bachelor’s degree in business administration and management from the University of Nevada, Reno in 2006, and a Juris Doctor from the William S. Boyd School of Law at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas in 2010. Following graduation, she worked as a legal clerk and then began practicing law in Las Vegas. After working in private practice, in 2011, she joined the Clark County District Attorney’s Office. She is now a Chief Deputy District Attorney at the Clark County District Attorney’s Office.

Representative Giovanni Capriglione, Texas

Representative Capriglione was elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 2012 and is now serving his fourth term. He currently serves on the House Committee on Pensions, Investments & Financial Services and the House Committee on Appropriations, of which he chairs the subcommittee on Infrastructure, Resiliency & Investment. He is a member of the House Innovation & Technology Caucus, House Manufacturers Caucus, House Rural Caucus, and the House Sportsman’s Caucus. Representative Capriglione is the owner and president of his own small business, Texas Adventure Capital LLC, which provides business services to various investment fund managers and business owners. His focus is investing in Texas-based small businesses. Previously, he held various positions at computer engineering companies specializing in semiconductor design and Internet products and was senior vice president at an investment firm where he managed the loan and equity portfolios of various American businesses. After receiving his BS in Physics, he pursued his MBA in Finance from Santa Clara University. After school, Representative Capriglione went on to work for a DFW based venture capital/private equity firm.

Ted Claypoole, Womble, Bond & Dickinson, Georgia

Ted Claypoole leads the Womble Bond Dickinson IP Transaction Team, its FinTech Team and its Privacy and Cyber Security Team, and he is immediate past chair of the American Bar Association’s Cyberspace Law Committee in the Business Law Section. He serves on the Leadership Council of the ABA Business Law Section and as the Liaison between the ABA Business Law Section and the Standing Committee on Law and National Security. He formerly worked as in-house technology counsel for Bank of America and for CompuServe. A regular speaker on security issues, Ted has been selected six times as a presenter for the RSA Data Security Conference in San Francisco, where he led a panel last April on AI’s effect on Information Security. He is co-author with Theresa Payton of two books from Rowman & Littlefield Publishers titled Privacy in the Age of Big Data and Protecting Your Internet Identity: Are You Naked Online? Ted is currently assembling and editing a book called The Law of Artificial Intelligence and Smart Machines for the American Bar Association, to be published mid-August 2019.

Jim Halpert, DLA Piper, Washington, D.C.

Jim Halpert advises clients regarding compliance and risk management strategies for transactions relating to transnational, federal and state security and privacy regulations, industry best practices and self-regulatory initiatives. He has represented clients in major security and privacy cases in the federal courts and before the Federal Trade Commission. He represents companies on a broad range of data management issues, including cyber and data security, cloud agreements, managing privacy class action risks, trans-national data flows, navigating difficult conflicts between foreign privacy laws and U.S. compliance obligations, regulation of advertising and marketing practices, healthcare and financial privacy, children's and student privacy, privacy regulation of communications media, employee data, due diligence in sales of corporate assets, records management and responses to government surveillance requests. He received his B.A. from Yale University and his J.D. from Harvard Law School.

Ryan P. Harkins, Microsoft, Washington

Ryan Harkins is the director of State Affairs & Public Policy at Microsoft where he serves as the lead lawyer on legislation and policy issues for Microsoft's State Government Affairs team. In that capacity, he has led the company's state and federal work on a range of federal and state privacy and data security issues, including student privacy, encryption and biometrics legislation. He has practiced at Microsoft since 2007 and has expertise in a range of privacy issues relating to product and service development, wiretap laws, online advertising, children, marketing and data breach notification. Harkins is also an adjunct professor at Seattle University School of Law, where he teaches courses on big data, privacy, and discrimination, and on cybercrime and government surveillance. Before joining Microsoft, Harkins worked as a litigator in Seattle and served as a law clerk to Judge Fred Van Sickle, U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Washington. He holds a B.A. from the University of Notre Dame and a J.D. from the University of Washington School of Law, where he served on the Washington Law Review and graduated with high honors and Order of the Coif.

Laura Moy, Georgetown University, District of Columbia

Laura Moy is the Executive Director of Georgetown Law’s Center on Privacy & Technology. She has written, spoken, and advocated before federal agencies and Congress on a broad range of technology policy issues, including law enforcement surveillance, consumer privacy, security research, device portability, copyright, and net neutrality. Her current work focuses on policy issues at the intersection of privacy and the criminal legal system. Before joining the Center, Moy was Acting Director of the Communications & Technology Clinic at Georgetown Law’s Institute for Public Representation. Prior to that, she worked at New America’s Open Technology Institute and Public Knowledge. Laura completed her J.D. at NYU School of Law and her LL.M. at Georgetown. Before law school, Moy analyzed cell site location information for the Manhattan District Attorney’s Office.