To equip working women, employers, and stakeholders with the information they need to achieve equal pay, the Women’s Bureau has developed an interactive map of current federal and state-level equal pay and pay transparency protections afforded to workers. The map is color-coded to denote whether equal pay or pay transparency protections exist at the state-level. You can select the Equal Pay or Pay Transparency button to see where there are state-level protections, and hover over a state to show its brief protection summary. For full-text information on relevant federal and state-level protections, coverage, and remedies, there is a link below the map. Help spread the word about worker protections by easily sharing this distinct and informative resource via Facebook, Twitter, and e-mail.

Look out for more interactive products from the Women’s Bureau this summer!
