Since 1998, Marcia Howard has served as the executive director of Federal Funds Information for States (FFIS), a subscription service created by and affiliated with the National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors Association. FFIS provides subscribing states with data and analysis for more than 200 federal grant programs. She also has worked for the National Association of State Budget Officers (NASBO), the federal government (ACIR), local government (Cincinnati), a public sector labor union (AFSCME), and internationally (Grenada).

Howard writes State Policy Reports, a semi-monthly newsletter that reports on emerging issues of importance to states.

She holds a bachelor’s degree in foreign affairs from the University of Cincinnati and a master’s degree in applied economics from the University of Michigan.
