Anne Stauffer Biography

Anne Stauffer directs Pew's work on fiscal federalism, examining fiscal and policy relationships between the federal government and the states by leading a team of researchers exploring the impact of federal tax and spending changes on the states.

Before joining Pew, Stauffer spent over a decade in state and federal budget development and policy. She was an assistant division director in the State Budget Division of the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration, which develops the governor's budget. She oversaw the state's higher education budget as well as formulation and implementation of the overall state budget. Prior to her work in New Mexico, Stauffer was a program examiner for telecommunications agencies with the Office of Management and Budget in Washington, D.C.

Stauffer has an MBA from the Kenan-Flagler School of Business at the University of North Carolina and a bachelor's degree in International Relations from Brown University.
